Ross University School of Medicine

Library Director - Medical

Application Due: 5/31/2003

Posted: 04/07/2003

Location: Dominica

Type: Full Time

Salary: 70,000 USD Per Year

Ross University

Founded in 1978 and located on the beautiful Caribbean island of Dominica, Ross University School of Medicine has worked closely with leading consultants on medical education than 20 years, to develop an educational program equal in scope and quality to programs offered by United States medical schools. The excellence of the program is attested to the fact that major United States RUSM-affiliated teaching hospitals welcome our student medical clerks, and RUSM graduates as medical residents. In addition, Ross University received multiple state approvals, from Florida, California, New York, and New Jersey attesting to the quality of the program.

Position: Library Director

The Ross University School of Medicine, seeks an experienced, enthusiastic, flexible service oriented librarian for the position of Library Director of the Anne Ross Library Learning Resource Center.

Essential responsibilities include developing user-centered service programs; identify managing print and non-print resources that support the university's teaching mission promoting the use of technology to enhance library operations, expand services and teaching; developing and evaluating formal and informal instruction related to the management of biomedical information; improving the skills and capabilities of staff; managing the budget and revenue-generating services.

Requirements:

- * ALA accredited MLS
- * 5 to 8 years' professional experience in an academic research or medical school library setting required.
- * 3 to 5 years' experience supervising professional librarians and/or library support staff
- * Awareness of trends in electronic and digital resources and the impact of technology on libraries.
- * Experience with current and development information services in academic medicine
- * Strong service orientation; commitment to developing student-centered services; ex verbal, communication, presentation and writing skills; effective teaching, platform and advanced computing skills.

- * Experience living and/or working overseas would be a plus.
- * Membership in the Academy of Health Information professionals preferred.

The Anne Ross Library occupies a 16,000 sq. ft. building featuring a large service area, computer labs with 60 Internet-accessible workstations, an eight-station Slice of Life I group study rooms, faculty multimedia room, faculty conference room, two large read and staff work space.

The collection features 130 current journal subscriptions, more than 5000 current text, other monographs, 180 audiovisual titles and 90 multimedia programs. The library uses DOCLINE and ISI for interlibrary loan and document delivery.

The library recently automated key library functions and developed a Web-based catalog, using EOS International's Q series. The library subscribes to EBSCOhost Electronic Journals Service, EBSCOhost Databases (MEDLINE, Cochrane Collection, Health Source - Consumer Edition, Psychology and Behavioral full-text collection), AccessMedicine and UpToDate.

Salary and benefits: Competitive annual salary - potentially tax-free; relocation assistance; and from the island of Dominica, deferred pension program and medical benefits. 20 paid annual leave is provided along with opportunities for professional development.

Subject: RE: Librarian position / Flight to Dominica

Hello John, I forwarded your e-mail to Ms Michell Fried at the NJ Office (1-732-978-5300 x 2623) so she can contact you via e-mail. I would like you to be with us as soon as you can schedule it. I see that you have lived and work in Dominica so you are familiar with the island and perhaps the school. Please if you can also contact Ms Fried so she has a telephone contact. Looking forward to your visit

Dear Dr. Rios:

Any word on my flight to Dominica? I haven't heard from your travel agent.

Thank you.
